In the UK a lot of people do shopping in a big supermarket once or twice a week. Big supermarkets aren't in the city centre so people need a car to get there. Older people or people who haven't got cars prefer small local shops. Food is better there, but it's also more expensive than in a supermarket.

In the USA a lot of people do their shopping in big supermarkets and shopping centres, but there are also many other interesting places which are very popular.

A lot of Americans buy food in farmers' markets. These are usually street markets with fresh fruit, vegetables, cheese and meat from local farms and also home made products like honey and jam.

When people don't need clothes, books or decorations which they've got in their house, they organize a garage sale. These sales are very popular in spring. People put the products for sale in their garage and sell them very cheaply.

..... special shopping websites where people buy and sell things. A lot of people use them because products are cheaper there than in shops. It is also possible to find many original products there if you collect things, so you can add to your collection. Planes, boats and paintings have been sold online, too!
