Deborah lives in Telford in England. She is a gold Olympic medallist. She won the 200 metres wheelchair sprint at the Paralympic Games in Sydney in 2000. She finished in 33.67 seconds, beating the world record by one second. British athletes won 18 gold medals at those Games. Deborah also nearly won the 400 metres race, but as she was racing round the track, the front wheel of her chair went into opponent's lane. She finished first, but the judges disqualified her. It wasn't easy for Deborah to get to the top. She was born with cerebral palsy, and she can't use her legs very much. Her sport is very expensive. Racing chairs cost more than 5,000 pounds, and most of training takes place at the stadium in Birmingham, 50 kilometres from her home. Fortunately, she got some money from the National Lottery. That money helped her get the best equipment. Deborah loves her sport. She spends a lot of time training, but she also enjoys listening to music and playing computer games. And she likes football. She's an Aston Villa fan.
