Tony is 12 years old. He lives in Stockport. It's a small town not far from Manchester. His daily routine is quite different from his friends' routine. His hobby is swimming. Tony gets up very early every day. He gets up at 5.30 and he has a small breakfast at 5.45, usually corn flakes and milk. At 6.15 Tony begins his swimming training. He practises every day. After two-hour training, he leaves the swimming pool and goes to school. His lessons start at 8.45. He has seven lessons. Tony likes his school. His favourite subjects are Spanish, French and IT. He hates Maths and History. Tony has lunch at school: fish or meat, potatoes or noodles and a lot of vegetables.

The school finishes at 4 o'clock and he goes to the swimming pool again. He swims from 4.30 to 6 o'clock and then he comes back home. The family have dinner at 7.00 o'clock: rice, chicken, salad, fruit and orange juice. Then Tony does his homework and watches sports programmes on TV. He goes to bed before 9 o'clock. He doesn't have time to meet his friends in the evening. But he wants to be a champion swimmer.
