The Mystery of the Yowie

It was a summer afternoon in 1996. Peter and Belinda Garfoot were on a driving holiday in Australia when they stopped at the side of a quiet road to take a break. Then, Peter saw something strange in the mirror - a huge creature, around 2 metres tall, with long arms and a hairy body, was walking upright across the road. They both turned around and watched for around 10 seconds before it disappeared into the forest. They were sure it was the Yowie.

The Yowie is a huge ape-like creature that some people think lives in the Australian Outback. The Aborigines, the original people of Australia, started telling stories about the Yowie hundreds of years ago. Every so often, there is a new sighting of this strange creature. Most scientists, though, say there is no evidence which proves that the Yowie exists. The Garfoots, for example, didn't manage to take photos or record a video of the creature they saw.

So, who knows what we should believe? Was the creature they saw actually a person dressed up in an ape costume? Was it just a large dog or fox which was walking strangely? Whatever the truth, the mystery of the Yowie carries on in Australia to this day.
