Nick Bostic, 25, who is a pizza man, was driving to work on early Monday when he noticed a house on fire. He called the fire brigade, pulled over his car near the house and entered it from the backdoor. He started screaming to make sure the house was empty. It turned out there were children inside. He woke them up. Three of them and Bostic rushed outside. Then he heard about one more kid and returned home and found a six-year-old who was still inside. He managed to find the child and they jumped out of a window to be safe. The child was fine, but Nick fainted and was taken to hospital for treatment.

Since Bostic suffered serious injuries, lots of people wanted to help him, his family set up a GoFundMe page for him. Almost five hundred thousand dollars were donated to pay off his treatment. People also left comments on the GoFundMe page with words of admiration and congratulated Nick his bravery.
